

The Qilin Corner

Tensions worsen on the Wildflower Front

It was nearing twilight, merely a day ago, when the last remaining strings preventing violent altercations between Edelweiss and Broomsedge from erupting were burnt beyond salvage.

Allegedly, two groups —each more than 50 strong— gathered on their respective sides of the Mist Engine track passing on their border. While we at the Corner are as of yet unable to describe the fight that followed on the Wildflower Front, the aftermath speaks for itself: 12 dead, with many more injured.

After hours of bloodshed, Crossroads Hall representatives and a retinue of guards finally arrived at the scene. But, before they could intervene, both sides retreated, licking their wounds.

Outside of placing blame on the other party, Darnic Sharpshank and Psonoe Blackbog have refused to comment on the matter at this time.

Terror in Tabula: Rise of Nameless Heroes

In the wake of the storm that ravaged over half of Tabula's districts, Hartshorn's border town was subsequently assaulted by four large air elementals. The forces of nature started tearing through everything not already damaged, as if provoked by an invisible force! According to our sources, it took everything for Trismegistus and Petrichor Tower forces to take out one of the creatures before being overwhelmed.

It was then —when the good citizens of Tabula feared all was lost— that they appeared: a trio of cloaked individuals that tore through the chaos and retaliated. Despite using the very same martial weapons as the guards, with just three of them, they took down two elementals. Then, to the awe of many, they subdued the last by weaving magics of fire and ice!

Needless to say, many others would have lost their homes —even their lives, perhaps— in the attack if not for these mysterious figures. But, when it came time for them to be lauded as heroes, the three vanished.

Now, mere days later, the story has already reached the midlands, and our Corner! People of Greater Qilin, should you discover these good folk, send us word!

Crossroads Hall to Host Sardior Delegation

Dear readers of the Corner, we can now confirm that a delegation of dragonborns from the Sardior Range will be coming to Qilin in the next few weeks to discuss the continued relationship between our lands.

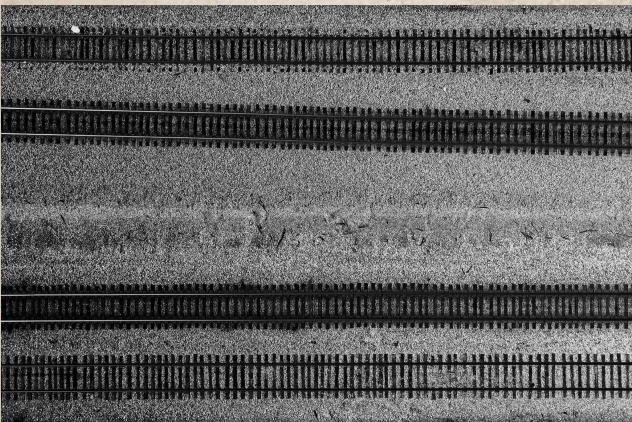

According to trusted sources, envoys of the Shi Clan will be joining the Lu Clan in Tiamat's Landing soon, and rumors say that the White Dragon himself may yet pass by.

It is as of yet unknown whether Sardior will finally make an appearance at our table for the conference during those weeks, but if this meeting goes well, we may yet be gracing Crossroads Hall with another permanent chair.

Millefeuille Corco returns; What is Pendrath's answer?

After a month's sojourn to Pendrath to seek aid from the Mayall Knights in securing the lands under Owl's Rest and beyond, the Second Lady of house Corco returns with bad news: They will not be sending any help.

Dear residents of Greater Qilin, please be mindful of the lands southeast of the city. We have received news that yet another caravan of merchants bound for villages in the Mayall region has gone missing. Should your travels take you in that direction, please be careful.

Fans of art, come visit!

It is our pleasure to announce that the Qilin House of Culture will be extending its opening hours to midnight for the next month. Many new works are on display. Welcome all!